Blind Spots

We all have our blind spots, occasions when we fail to exercise our better judgment, perhaps because of an unconscious bias or maybe because of something that happened well in the past. Along with our catechumens, we are called today to scrutinize our attitudes, our biases, and our conscience, find and admit our blind spots and seek to expose them to the light. In today's Gospel, Jesus heals a blind man and reveals himself to be the light of the world. May that light heal our blindnesses, and may we look to him to enlighten our lives as he enlightens the world.
